Q: asp.net mvc redirecting to "/" for post requests I'm developing a simple job portal app in asp.net MVC and have a problem. If I send a post request from a mobile device to the app it simply hangs. If I go to the url provided in the app and do a GET request it works fine. Any ideas? A: You say you're using POST requests, so there's nothing wrong with the request on the server itself. I have no idea what kind of HTTP client you're using, but with something like this you would start by ensuring the request is OK by setting a breakpoint and inspecting the HTTP request in IIS. The specific response you need to look for could be anything. You could log the response and the client request and compare them. Something like the following should work as a starting point var url = new Uri(Request.Url.AbsoluteUri) .Dump(); //... var request = (HttpWebRequest)WebRequest.Create(url); request.Method = "GET"; //... All this comes together in a full experience that spans. 9.5/10 If you're not reading this review then I'm not going to say anything more about the game. No clip-art! No virtual walkthrough! No details! Nope! What I'll tell you about it is that they made a game that is a blatant rip-off of the first game. Oh, and I play the first game a lot...but let's not dwell in negativity. Nerd Attack is similar to the first game in a number of ways. You've 3e33713323
