If Photoshop becomes too much of a hassle, it can be replaced with Lightroom, which is a powerful, easier to use photo editing platform that is free to use. Where Photoshop was once the leader, Lightroom is the new contender for the top spot. It offers more features while being much easier to use than Photoshop. The only draw back is the fact that Lightroom does not work with older hardware. The ultimate "Photoshop killer" tool is the Content-Aware Move tool in Photoshop. It is an excellent tool that doesn't replace moving or resizing, but rather, it helps you quickly make more precise moves. The Content-Aware Move tool inserts the new image into your existing document and then adjusts it to match the content in the image. You can use this tool for different purposes like removing objects, cropping, and resizing. For fun, try adding or editing your photos on Photoshop website. A tutorial on using the "Image Editing Methods with Photoshop" at the official website will teach you how to complete the best practices. With its flexibility and reach, Photoshop is the right tool for a vast range of photo editing. It can be used to both lighten and darken an image, create blue and green screens, add flash, remove noise, sharpen images, create a collage, change the perspective, and much more. Lightroom offers a different set of tools for a more specialized editing task. It is really easy to use, requires no technical expertise, and has a lot of great features. Even if you don't want to buy any photo editing applications, you should still have it installed on your computer. A few practical uses of lightroom include: As a RAW converter to convert photographs taken in RAW format to a more usable JPEG format. As a screen capture and photo editing program to capture images on screen or photos from flash drives and put them into Lightroom. With Lightroom, you can edit, organize, and create multimedia slideshows for your digital photos. You can use Lightroom to edit photos and adjust the tone to your taste. If you are not satisfied with the results, you can adjust and retouch the image again. Lightroom uses algorithms to process photos and can produce outstanding results. The following examples are from real-life users of Lightroom, showcasing Lightroom's power and capability. 1. Remove

I am trying to make my Date field auto-populate when a user types into the date field, but I am having no luck. How can I do this? Currently, if I enter a date, the field does not populate. class Article(models.Model): title = models.CharField(max_length=200) published_date = models.DateField() def __str__(self): return self.title I would like the date to be auto-populated like this: A: You should probably use a DateField in your Article model, and in your admin class have a formfield_class option: class ArticleAdmin(admin.ModelAdmin): formfield_class = DateField If you do this, you should also, of course, put the DateField in the right model in the admin, since you don't want it in all Admin classes. The formfield_class option allows you to define your own form field class, and is used as a basis for formfield_overrides. So, if the field's in a particular ModelAdmin subclass isn't defined by DateField, you can implement your own formfield to do what you want with it. You should create a __init__ method for your custom formfield that does something like this: def __init__(self, *args, **kwargs): super(DateField, self).__init__(*args, **kw

Thursday, February 10, 2010 Why did Tebow throw that pass? Why did I go 9 innings and lose? Why have I not blogged in so long? This is the most frequent questions I receive. So, here we are! I'd like to write an answer for the above questions, but really, those questions are better answered by a simple play-by-play of the events that transpired in the last two weeks, starting with when I first heard about the Tim Tebow trade, ending with tonight. First, there was a trade, and then I heard the announcement about the trade, and then I learned that the Raiders hired Tom Coughlin as head coach, which meant that he would be taking over for the Jets, and then I heard the announcement about Coughlin and I knew that his record was... not good. Actually, even better than the record of the Jets. I couldn't wait to see the first half of the NFL season. If Coughlin didn't bring in all the talent the Jets had so quickly, then it was going to be a long, long season. Then I learned that Tebow was going to New York. Would he start for the Jets? No, but he was going to have a chance to start in the NFL. And that is all the Jets ever wanted, was a chance. Then I learned about how the Jets had acquired Tebow in the trade. That was a little eye-opening too, as it isn't the way that I had viewed the trade. Yes, they had acquired Tebow, but they had acquired Tebow so that, as Dan mentioned in his podcast, they could have a little bit of a smoke screen, should things not work out with Sanchez, because they could then say, "Well, the Jets traded Tebow away to try and get Sanchez, but they didn't work it out so now they're only going with Sanchez." Unfortunately, he didn't work out. The Jets then, as many of you know, traded Ryan Fitzpatrick to the Dolphins. And Tebow? What happened to Tebow? He went to the Jets. I thought that they would stick with Sanchez and that they would not trade Tebow so that they could later say, "We traded Tebow because we want to stick with Sanchez." I was convinced that they were that crazy. I was certain of it. But then, I learned that Tebow would be in a "receivers" role
