Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to a cross-point, ferroelectric random-access memory (FRAM) and more particularly, to a cross-point FRAM structure that utilizes an organic material, particularly an organic ferroelectric material, to provide a switching memory element of the device. 2. Description of the Related Art FRAMs are non-volatile memories that do not require periodic refreshing of stored data. An FRAM has a cross-point array of ferroelectric memory cells located at the intersections of n address lines (rows) and m data lines (columns). A ferroelectric capacitor is located at the intersection of each data line and each corresponding address line, where the capacitor stores a binary value based on the charge state of the capacitor. "So I was obviously devastated and demoralized,” Williamson said. “And I was just putting it behind me. But then I was watching this, and I started to see it getting worse for Democrats.” She said she was fearful that the situation for Democrats was continuing to worsen. “We’ve got to keep our eyes open to what’s going on. We’ve got to keep our guard up,” she said. Asked whether she was a Bernie Sanders supporter, she said: “I don’t know what I am. I don’t have a super PAC. I don’t have a super PAC. I’m kind of supporting the idea that if we can get an independent candidate out there, that doesn’t have a party, well then, it’s more likely.” It seems like there’s a new crop of anti-Trump candidates emerging every week. Will Democrats ever have a candidate in 2020 that will not only be more of a draw than Trump but will also have a real chance of beating him? At its January meeting, the Democratic National Committee voted to eliminate the campaign’s
