The patient population consisted of 53 patients (age range 8.6-65.0 years) with at least one missing or damaged posterior tooth that required extensive restoration. The posterior teeth were prepared and hybridized. The finishing and cementation of the hybrid crowns were done. The patients were examined 1 year later to assess the esthetic outcome of the crowns. The esthetic evaluation was performed with the modified ABO method to determine the average pre and post-operative score. The analysis of the data showed that both the types of crowns attained the same average score pre-operatively (2.68). The post-operative score was improved to 3.28 for hybrid ceramic crowns as compared to 3.00 for cast and cement crowns, but the difference was not statistically significant (P > 0.05). However, there was a statistically significant difference between the average pre-operative score and the post-operative score for the patients who had received both crowns (P Q: Using
