Choosing photo software The first thing to consider is what kind of software you want to use for your photo editing. The choices can be a bit confusing, but they break down into two primary categories: * Consumer-grade software that is available at a reasonable price and is easy to use, or * Industry-standard software that is significantly more powerful and more expensive. This book focuses on the first category, most of which is available for less than $20. Software prices, of course, can change, and always be sure to check with the vendor for the most up-to-date prices. ## Consumer-grade software These programs focus more on ease of use than on professional power. Some are just placeholders for consumer-level photo editing, but others offer powerful tools for editing. The consumer-level programs typically come with just the basics, although you can easily add more features using the software as well as available online. You can quickly and easily edit images in a program like Adobe Photoshop Elements or Picasa (`www.picasa.com`). Picasa does offer some professional options, and a few online tutorials are available, but it's probably best to use Elements as the software you will use in this book. You can opt for a more powerful and professional program like Adobe Photoshop or Lightroom. Use these programs for more complex photo editing. You will find a number of tutorials in Chapter 10.

I have been at PSE in more ways than one. While I was at Monte Carlo we gained an additional production facility while also moving from our original downtown location back to our heart & soul, opening up sales floors in Saks Fifth Avenue, Sephora, and MAC. This new location was a sign to grow and expand. We also found a hidden gem of a store in Princeton Junction. While it wasn't PSE's first choice and we had many obstacles get this store open, we could not have been more thrilled to call it our Princeton Junction store. We were the first retail store and our largest to open in New Jersey. All because of our amazing staff and wonderful Princeton Junction, New Jersey community. We now have our second location opening up in the same state. Our Mall of America location is sure to become a same level store for our company, just like all the rest! The 2nd location is opening up in the Prudential Center that has an existing PSE team opening up this new location as well. I couldn't be more excited about the future!"The 2012 Auto Show just got a little more interesting...the Ford Focus Electric will now have a sibling sister under the hood for 2012, the 2012 Ford Fiesta Electric, and the twin sister comes in both hatchback and convertible forms. It's a 1.0-liter engine in the Fiesta, and a 0.9-liter EcoBoost motor in the Focus. Available in the United States this year, we'll have to wait until next year to see whether the Fiesta and the Focus hatch will be sold with the two sister cars." Click to expand...
