Just click one of the links below: It is very useful as an accounting tool.I like that you can pay your credit card monthly and that it will download the transactions to your computer when the date arrives. If you are using this for a business, it is nice that you can easily export the transactions to excel. Very intuitive. Very easy to use. Good way to record income and expenses. Wish there was a way to add a second card for the other account. Or perhaps for one of the lines if all of them get charged on one account. Also, I have found the phone app to be more useful for phone bill transactions. Even though my phone bill is under $10 a month, sometimes the phone charge can be higher than the amount of the transaction that it makes sense to keep track of. Showing 1-10 out of 10 comments Thanks for the review. Good to hear you appreciate the intuitive nature of the app. I do agree about the feature that lets you track multiple cards/accounts and I am working on adding it to the app, just haven't been able to find a way to have the app update with the current card balance after it is changed in the main application. You can enable on demand sync via the desktop option that appears in the menu when it is added to your account. However, the phone app syncs on a per transaction basis.Passengers flying from Los Angeles International Airport to Sydney on the Qantas airline are being asked to remove their shoes before entering the airport's Terminal 2. The notice, which says shoes must be removed to exit the terminal, was emailed to travelers from the Australian flag carrier on Monday, New York-based direct-booking website Skyscanner said on Tuesday. "We have been informed that Qantas will be issuing a notice to the LAX Airport that all shoes must be removed for any flights operating from LAX to Sydney," the notice reads. "This requirement is to ensure that your footwear meets Qantas' standard operating requirements to ensure a secure operating environment." The notice also warns that travelers not in compliance will be denied access to the airport. In a statement to AFP, Qantas said it had informed its passengers on Monday that "to provide an environment of confidence in the wake of recent events, Qantas may require customers to remove their footwear on arrival at LAX before they exit the terminal." "We are doing this as a precautionary measure and will continue to work closely with the Department of Homeland Security to ensure that this is just a temporary measure," it said.
