The gameplay consists of submitting the answers to six different questions to a game based on the iconic “Magic Eight Ball” toy. It is a simple game, with very few moves, in a context that does not offer a real danger, but is extremely fun. Magic 8 ball is a toy marketed in the late 50s by General Mills. Two versions were available. One at that time was with the ball under a glass. The other was a version that was colorful and that had an image of the ball. The game we play today is based on the colorful “Magic 8 ball” toy. The player receives and answers questions that are submitted and then only the right answer is revealed to the player. There are 6 questions and 6 answers. The questions are distributed among three categories: Social, Circus and Music, in that order, from left to right. When the ball is under the glass, it is associated with the Circus category, while the colorful version is associated with the Music category. So in the game, the user responds to the questions through the answers in the categories where the questions are located. If the answer is correct, the bubble appears below the question. If the answer is incorrect, the ball is white. When the ball is white, the player can guess a new answer to the question. When the 6 questions and the 6 answers have been given to the user, the games finishes. However, in this version, the user can reload the game by answering the same question several times. If the user is lucky, that answer can give access to the bonus, while if he is unlucky, that answer can have no effect on the outcome of the game. The mobile game created by MaCuSoftware is a game that is only to be discovered. “ 3e33713323
