Can you afford $78.70 per week? The minimum for a single 16 hour shift is $7.70. So if you work that shift for the whole year, that's $154. This means that you make $53.85 an hour. So the RTTTABEG rate is approx 47% of your regular rate. Can you afford $53.85 an hour? Most people cannot and this is why it's called a non traditional benefit. If you do the simple math, then you can figure out what your work life would be if you worked for 44 weeks instead of 52 and earned the full 2 weeks of Paid Vacation, 10 weeks of paid Personal Time and 2 weeks of Work Truck Hours. Here's the math: TOTAL WORK HOURS 44 – 2 vacation weeks 10 weeks of personal time 2 weeks of work truck hours or (20 weeks) (Note : ignoring the 2 weeks of work truck hours - for this example there is no work truck pay) TOTAL HOURS 1,066 hours 12 hours 48 minutes (x$3.35) 48 hours x$8.75 is $92.50 ($46.125 hourly) 49 weeks times $92.50 is $4,611.50 ($46.125 hourly) 33.75% of $4,611.50 is $1,642.37 (total work life)

(per Week) Because this is a benefit, the calculation is based on your wages (unlike benefits like health insurance). We recommend that if you take your 2 weeks of paid vacation at the beginning of the year, then you plan your work around these months so that you have enough hours to maintain the benefits. This means that you can take a bit of vacation between those months or have fewer hours for the remainder of the
