Lets say I have an object (a, b, c) and I want to delete a. Is it possible to do the following? void (1 a* p.) { delete p; } void g (b* p.) { delete p; } int main () { a a; b b; c c; f (&a); g (&b); f (&c); } A: Yes. The code must be valid C++ code, but that is no problem, as it is for the compiler. The Standard is clear: An implementation may assume that a pointer to a nonarray object is either a pointer to the first element of an array object or is equal to a pointer to its first element (6.3.2.1). You'd have to be careful about alignment requirements, though.
