This paper reports the results of the French National Formulary Committee evaluation on the use of the novel glycopeptide, teicoplanin, in patients with hematologic malignancies. A total of 594 patients were included in this evaluation. The clinical data on teicoplanin used in these patients were obtained by five French hospitals. The patients included were heterogeneous with respect to tumor type, stage and duration of neutropenia, stage and duration of disease, previous exposure to antibiotics, previous or concomitant use of cyclosporine and/or azathioprine, underlying liver disease and others. The median duration of treatment was 12 days. The tolerability of teicoplanin was excellent or good in 97% of cases. Only 23 (4.1%) patients experienced adverse reactions, which were mainly grade 1 or 2. The most common adverse reactions were nausea or vomiting, skin infections and diarrhea. No significant drug interactions were encountered. The clinical efficacy rate at end of treatment was 91.3% but dropped to 75% at follow-up. The mean time to eradication of infection was 7 days. Gram-positive infections were more frequently eradicated than gram-negative infections. Teicoplanin appears to be a safe and effective treatment for infections caused by gram-positive pathogens in patients with hematologic malignancies.Q: com.ibm.icu.text.MeasurementUnitProvider - how to find a specific pattern? The site has been investigated since the 1940s, and is characterized by five platform mounds and two conical, earthwork mounds. A large, rectangular, wooden platform was built in a mound sometime after 1785. A second major platform was built in the center of the site, associated with a large, oval enclosure. This platform had two concentric rings of posts, and inside the outer ring were two longhouses. Construction began about 1785. The Suzanne Baker Site was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1998.
