Running, jumping and diving have never felt more realistic, thanks to a brand new speed system that takes movements as real-life examples and applies them to the player. Athleticism and speed is now a true component of your game that was previously disregarded and forgotten. Improved dribbling and ball control, along with quicker decisions in and around the box, will now allow players to play with more freedom and less self-cage. The new "Touchline Kick" allows players to gracefully finish balls from the goal line, to the open goal or into the penalty box. From crosses, through-balls, and even with players sliding in, it's effortless to strike the ball perfectly for a goal. Cardboard goalkeepers now make perfectly timed dives and stop shots to give the keeper a chance to save and can also intercept shots and control and direct the ball away from danger. "FIFA 22 on Xbox One is the best FIFA game we've ever made," said Oliver Halbig, Executive Producer on FIFA 22. "Using player input from 22 real-life players and applying it to the game makes for the most authentic simulation yet. HyperMotion technology and the New Touchline Kick allows our players to make decisions in and around the goal that look and feel like they're happening in real-life." FIFA 22 is ready to challenge your perception of your favorite moments in the history of football. It delivers a brand new soundtrack and a range of all-new stadiums that will take you on a journey from city streets to pitch-perfect stadiums. A fitting homage to the journey of the greatest player to have played the game, with a cinematically dramatic cutscene. Build your dream team. Choose your position, style and playing style, and customize your appearance and kit. You'll even be able to add your very own scar! Experience the official audio commentary. Enjoy captions as football legends talk you through key moments in matches. And use the Be A Pro feature to play out your favorite moments with famous players. "To see FIFA's biggest roster ever come to life is amazing," said John Boulter, Creative Director of EA SPORTS. "FIFA 22's roster features the biggest number of real-life players, real-life performances, real-life stadiums and real-life game play department. You're an average soccer nut whose interest in FIFA 20 matches up with your interest in soccer. As a result, it's a bit like getting a little taste of the lifestyle afforded to those in publishing, which means you get to play the game. No such luck for those of you in the jobs of pickle salesman, barista, or part time home security guard. FIFA 20 takes place in Brazil, in a season that FIFA describes as "Alexandre's Dream". The game's introduction is an animated video of the Brazil-Germany 2014 World Cup semi-final, a vivid illustration of how EA compares the next-generation version of FIFA to the original 1999 edition. The 2014 World Cup was the first time FIFA 20 introduced new player models, adding new faces and hair and making its stadiums, the field of play, the players, and even the goals slightly more convincing. EA has also revamped the core gameplay, which has resulted in a generation leap for the series. The new ball, a completely redesigned boot, offers players a new immersive experience. It's now less bouncy and more accurate, allowing players to change direction more easily. This in turn makes things more lively on the pitch as defenders anticipate where the ball is going, rather than where it has been. The emphasis on attacking has been somewhat diluted compared to last year's game, with dribbling less prominent than last season. Despite FIFA's description
