MoviesThe latest cinematic installment of director Shane Black's sprawling crime saga Predator earned $93 million in its first weekend of release, the highest worldwide debut ever for an action-adventure film, according to the studio. Predator had the fifth-highest weekend debut in North America, behind Avengers: Endgame, Spider-Man: Far From Home, Mary Poppins Returns and Star Wars: The Last Jedi. Its worldwide debut, which included earnings from France, Germany, Korea, Mexico, the UK and South Africa, was the biggest ever in those markets, and biggest worldwide debut for a movie starring Sylvester Stallone. Predator also earned more than $90 million in China this weekend, setting a national record for local-language films. The film, which launched worldwide Friday, took in $100.3 million globally in its first three days — far exceeding the previous high-water mark for Sylvester Stallone's "The Expendables 3." Starring Stallone, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Carl Weathers, Yussif Ibrahim and Native American actor Trevante Rhodes, the new Predator movie is a departure from its 1987 predecessor. It is a reboot of the franchise that began with Predator 2 in 1990. Predator brought in $20.3 million from Tuesday in North America, including $6.6 million on Tuesday alone. On Wednesday, the film dipped below $20 million for the first time, and later in the day posted its second-best-ever Tuesday of $6.2 million. The picture's $60 million budget — which includes a reported $30 million marketing spend and $40 million in P&A — did not appear to dampen box office. The film has already grossed more than $165 million worldwide, ahead of its predecessor, Predator 2. Predator was also the highest-grossing opening of the year in France, according to local box office tracker Entrée Audience. The film has won the title of Russia's highest-grossing western to date. Even though Stallone's earlier Predator grossed far more than any of the franchise's other entries, the title passed to this installment largely because of the all-star cast and its viral marketing campaign, which included a surprise appearance by Sylvester Stallone on CBS' "Late Show with David Letterman"
