From the creators of Gunjack and Marksman comes Holo Impact, a fast paced, first-person action game with a classic 2D feel. A little story: Long ago two great minds, The Professor and Doctor Van Storm, longed to be a part of a grand, cosmic experiment. Two hero's, who carried the hopes and dreams of their people in their hearts. When the experiment goes awry, both the Professor and Doctor Van Storm are transformed into holographic projections. Due to another user's mistake the experiment becomes a hit, but the machines have programmed all the participants to eliminate "threats". The fate of both these great scientists lies in the hands of you and the group of teens as they must take them down. FEATURES: - A unique blend of arcade and puzzle gameplay - Classic 2D feel with the fast paced action - 6 challenging levels - 8 weapons and upgrades - 11 stylish bosses - Beautiful 3D environments - Deadly traps and traps to avoid - Fun, easy to learn, but difficult to master puzzles - 4 Player co-op for 1-2 players - Leaderboards to see how you stack up against the world! - A special mode to play with your friends A little about me: I am a self-taught hobbyist game developer, currently self-publishing my first game before GDC 2016. I love pixel art and think it is the perfect style for shooters and platform games. I am currently working on a new content update for Holo Impact, so be sure to check out my blog here: In the near future, virtual reality devices will make virtual reality gaming commonplace and a true mainstream option. Brands will advertise in these worlds, and their advertising will affect real players in the physical space where they purchase games. However, this advertising should take the form of "sharing" or providing experiences to the consumer. That's what this post is about: what should brands do in VR to affect brand affinity? The Problem Virtual reality brands have been unable to generate positive brand affinity with mainstream consumers, and for the most part are bypassed in the enthusiast market. Even very niche devices, such as the Oculus Rift DK1 or Sony's VR headset are finding very little success with the mainstream market. As a result, the VR industry has

Be the savior of humanity. Holo Impact: Impact is a free to play third person shooter game, where you are a student from space academy, where you will be trained to protect the planet Earth from alien invaders. Holo Impact : Impact was developed by Nikotron Studios, and published by Sigma Games, where you are one of many students from space academy, where you will be trained to protect the planet Earth from alien invaders. Holo Impact : Impact is a game that was designed with two great motives. First, is the experience of an old school arcade game, but with a modern touch, and second, a game that combines a third person, "Overwatch" design, with a platform game, "Hotline Miami", which is a great combination. If you enjoy games that have a retro touch, or combine an old style video game with modern, then you should try this game. How to play Holo Impact : Impact: In Holo Impact : Impact is designed, that you only can move and shoot with the mouse. You will be displayed on a fixed, third person view. The movement of the "camera" is a second person perspective. Another great design is that you only have a limited number of guns, and the other guns are scattered around the game map. This makes it very interesting, when you are exploring an environment in a way, where you have to explore, to find the other guns. The movement of the "camera" is also a great mechanic, that "keeps" you in the game, and you do not feel as if you are playing a shooting simulator. Holo Impact : Impact: Holo Impact : Impact has five maps. The game has five different levels (Rounds) in total. Before you play, you will have the choice to select a difficulty level, either Easy, Medium, Hard, Expert or Master. When you start the game, you will be booted into the "Level One". The first map is called "Solace". In "Solace" there are lots of different weapon, and light weapons and shields. The environment of "Solace" is diverse. You will not have difficulty at all, because the weapons and enemy designs are well balanced. The weapon of your choice, is the primary fire, the secondary fire, is the "grappling hook" d41b202975

The concept of shooting robots is pretty old, and they are also now pretty easy to control, so if you were a fan of Golden Axe and Strider, then I am sure that you will like Holo Impact. The gameplay is simple, it has been a long time since I played the arcade classic, but this game doesn't seem to be a remake of it. The controls are simple, your left mouse button moves the car, and the right click is your fire button. The guns have a single fire button on their grips that you can use to fire left or right, and I was impressed with the weapons that you can get. There are 3 guns, and each has a pistol, shotgun, and rocket launcher. Each of these weapons is different and can be used in different ways. After picking a gun you can then jump to a position on the left or right of the screen to attack enemies. This game is good as a quick pick-up and play, but I don't know if I would want to keep playing. There is no story, and it is very arcade-like, so I would expect the 2nd and 3rd parts to be pretty repetitive. Overall I would recommend this to people that want a fun shoot-em-up, and not much more.4/5 Game "Holo Impact : Prologue" Graphics: The game looks great, and has some great explosions and effects. I was surprised to see such a retro graphics and concept, but it doesn't bother me because it looks really good, and I like it. There is a lot of enemy types in the game, and you have to look at the environment as there are plenty of hidden items to pick up. The graphics, along with the background music, really make this game worth playing. I really don't mind the graphics much, since it looks really good, and everyone can really enjoy it.4/5 Game "Holo Impact : Prologue" Sound: Sound is usually a big factor that influences a game, and I don't think the sound on this game is bad. The game sounds like it is from an old-skool arcade, and I think this is a great thing. The music is pretty repetitive and only slightly vary, but it sounds pretty good. The sound effects aren't really good, but you have to be a skilled keyboard player to master the controls. I didn't really notice the music or sound effects that much.4/5 Game "Holo Impact : Prologue" Replay Value:
