I want to move some of the f# to f# project but I don't want to have the f# code in the same solution as c# code. I tried: copying them one by one. it is not possible as some of the functions are used in f# project. using "Refactor | Extract" option. this does not seem to be working. Please help. A: First, I assume you're talking about editing .fs files, not any code behind files that might be involved in compilation. If so, you want to extract a referenced assembly from your C# project into your F# project.
