The pro-inflammatory actions of platelet-activating factor (PAF) on cultured vascular smooth muscle cells (VSMCs) have been extensively studied. Here, we report the anti-inflammatory effects of ferulic acid, a major phenolic acid, on PAF-induced VSMC inflammation. We used a chemiluminescence (CL) assay as an indicator of NO production. Ferulic acid markedly suppressed the PAF-stimulated ROS and NO production. Similar inhibitory effects were also seen on the PAF-induced ROS production in macrophages. This phenolic compound attenuated the expression of inducible NO synthase (iNOS) and cyclooxygenase-2 (COX-2), both of which were significantly induced by the administration of PAF. Ferulic acid attenuated the degradation of IkappaB-alpha and suppressed PAF-induced expression of p65 NF-kappaB, and its nuclear translocation. This phenolic compound increased the cytoplasmic levels of eNOS and markedly inhibited the PAF-induced translocation of p65 NF-kappaB from the cytoplasm to the nucleus. These results clearly show that ferulic acid has
