Out of Orbit Cracked Accounts takes place in a post-apocalyptic / sci-fi universe. The universe is overrun with space pirates, so be careful out there. The player controls a human crew member aboard a spaceship. Using standard equipment and exploration, the player must loot, salvage and search for resources. Find raw ores. Convert them to usable materials, useful items, weapons and more. Explore randomly generated maps, fly through randomly generated portals to another uncharted part of the universe. Find and fight enemy spaceships. Explore the multitude of systems, planets and moons in your way. Build their own spaceships, objects and equipment to survive in the cosmos. Engage in massive space battles. Hack enemy space stations. The sky is the limit. Literally. Collect raw ores. Convert them to usable materials, useful items, weapons and more. Space gunslinger? Out of Orbit is here to help you show up your friends in multiplayer! We are aware of the recent major changes to the Steam Workshop and want to make sure we support future updates to this system. Out of Orbit will be a permanent exception to this change, and will continue to be supported by us. We will still have a home in the Steam Workshop as we plan to grow it, expand it, and add custom filters for easy navigation. We will also be moving to a private match matchmaking system and hope to take advantage of this with future features. Game Updated v1.1:

What's new:

Review: F9 My feature review of F9, the most recent addition to the Stoddardstown orbit as yet. "F9" is the creation of Clyde Boysar (Aeon Fetus). I wonder if we could get Clyde to join up the dots and tell us the story that all this stuff represents? Gee, that would be fun.... "F9" is the latest work from and anthology staged (or "Sanctioned") by the Austrian F9 team, all of which have been heavily implicated in the creation of the Egyptian pyramids, Atlantis, the Egyptian calendar, and other contrived Archetype and pseudo-scientific urban myths. I'll spare you the long list of 100 level conspiracies and simply say that they are one of the main "powers behind the scenes" etc. "F9" is about "President" Shannow's ("showbiz guru") quest to find and unlock a series of "serendipitous" variables (variables?) that generate "division" (unified?), simultaneously "neutralising" ("neutralise"?) "law enforcement" attempts at destruction. Hence the crew's seeking out... 1. "travel back in time" to the Wild West (there are four other “wild” places...) 2. “create a giant pool of water” 3. “find Thirpoo, one of Shannow’s serendipitous variables” 4. “make an atomic bomb” And so forth and so on. The follies are played out against the backdrop of an alien invasion of earth and a worldwide nuclear war. All is interconnected and there is much lying about and many deceptions. It’s also a hip little rock opera that ends in a delightful and touching conclusion. The best way to approach “F9” is as a series of epics in linear time, which, like “Babylon 5”, cuts and explodes time for little or no apparent purpose. Unless, of course, you are waking up to the fact that the illusion is the alchemy of time constraints. If you are conscientious it’s like an engineer playing chess. The engineer has control
