Q: What is the best approach to deep copy an object in C++ I need to deep copy an object in C++. I want to know which of the below approaches is the best as it is rather time consuming and I can't find it anywhere on the web.

[Approach #1] Use the member-variable assignments: `struct MyCopy{ MyCopy(): myDict(new std::map) { } std::map* myDict; };`

[Approach #2] Create a copy constructor and deep copy the data using the assignment operator: `struct MyCopy{ MyCopy(const MyCopy& rhs): myDict(new std::map()) { for(int i = 0; i size(); ++i) myDict->insert(std::make_pair(rhs.myDict->get(i).first, rhs.myDict`
