This is a machine that makes 3-D objects in thin layers. One layer at a time, layer upon layer, the object comes together, layer by layer. The detail is amazing. It allows us to create objects by printing the metal and plastic, materials we usually use to create products. A 3-D printer can be programmed to print out a custom object or even furniture or jewelry. There are even 3-D cameras and printers that allow us to print real-time 3-D photography. So you can build a box, or a car, or a teepee. And you don't have to build the whole thing in one shot. With a 3-D printer, you take an object and break it down into little pieces, create a print-out of each little piece, and then put it all together. One 3-D printer is helping farmers find new markets for their food. Because this machine is able to print a specific object, a printer can create food that's customized for a particular need, or for a specific customer. Thanks to 3-D printing, we're able to create foods that aren't possible by any other means. It's opening the door to new products that were never possible before. The impact this technology is having on agriculture is incredible. Because a 3-D printer can print any shape, it's able to create products that can't be made by any other process. A 3-D printer can print just about anything that can't be made by a human. With a 3-D printer, we are able to produce products for a custom customer
