
Test Drive Unlimited 1.45 Trainee [UPDATED]

The memory is there—it occupies less than the size of a flash card. But it can grow more than a million times larger. So, what? There's no need to save everything. A scenario for the future of IT training. By Peter Bray Non-descript company in a nondescript area of the United Kingdom. The company has a well-established trainee scheme with a number of trainees, a number of courses, a number of trainers, and a budget of 25,000 Euros per trainee per year. It employs 12 full-time and 12 part-time trainers and no trainers are posted to the course more than two or three times a year. The various courses are offered to IT students through the university as well as through a number of other channels. The company is able to offer its trainers all the resources required to train a large number of trainees. But. No it can't. for it does not have unlimited resources. A training company opens its doors to its newest recruit (or trainee). The firm says, "We have a very generous training scheme. We have never had a trainee quit because we are too generous." The new recruit says, "I would like to join your training scheme for a year. But. do you have unlimited resources?" "We have never had anyone in our scheme who made it to the end of a year before quitting." The new recruit spends a year as a trainee. One day he says to his supervisor, "I would like to stay a little longer. Will you give me a special project?" The supervisor says, "Of course. Just don't get carried away." Months pass. Then one day the new recruit says to his supervisor, "I have always wanted to undertake a project." "Will you do it?" asks the supervisor. "I would love to be able to do a project. But. do you have unlimited resources?" "We have never had anyone complete a project for us before." The new recruit says, "I can

On Tuesday, September 12, 2013, my friend "JustJoe4" in New England leaked the following in an email to me:Someone please give me a pair of point and shoot waterproof cameras, and I'd like to put them in a pool. Seriously. I have a run in the pool. All I really need is the ability to take some self-portraits. Just a couple. You could attach them to a chain to help me keep them above the water line and be able to take a few without removing them. $400 or so will cover it all. Thanks. I really want to do this.
