Titus is a kid who wants to be a police detective in a small country of Western Europe. He lives in harmony with his parents and his two very nice sisters. One day, the Police Chief gives Titus a mission: you have to follow a thief and to bring back his stolen diamonds. A long and exciting adventure awaits you...The Portuguese wunderkind is signed for €180 million until 2020, but Manchester United paid £28.5 million up front for him in July. Cavani says he turned down a world record offer from the European champions, believed to be around £52 million, insisting he had no intention of leaving Napoli. A statement by Cavani said: "Manchester United came to me and offered a good amount of money. "I got the chance to play for a rival. "Napoli? An important club with a lot of history in Italy and in Europe. I don't want to leave. "I really love this club, but it would have been foolish not to look at other offers. "The club have been good to me, starting with my arrival in 2006, but I didn't make the Champions League final because I was injured. I am grateful for this club." Club president Aurelio de Laurentiis has rejected suggestions that Cavani will not join the Red Devils, and has also said that AC Milan's pursuit of him is dependent on negotiations between the two clubs and Cavani's personal terms are sorted. He told Corriere della Sera: "In any case, Cavani is 100 per cent not going to Manchester United. "I don't understand why people are talking about that. It's a massive mistake. "There are negotiations that will be completed in a few days. "Cavani is 100 per cent. Don't think it's going to happen. "There's no news, but if I can say one thing is that Milan are not alone with their interest, because Cavani would prefer to stay here." United are understood to have lodged a formal bid for Cavani in the summer, when he was contacted by José Mourinho during his first spell at Chelsea. The Red Devils are believed to have been in talks with his representatives for several weeks, and Cavani was also in attendance at Chelsea's pre-season friendly at home to Newcastle United on Wednesday. Cavani's statement adds: "Manchester United contains a significant amount of familiar & new tunes. In my opinion, the songs in the OP theme are quite weak compared to the songs in the OP Part 2 theme. Not a bad thing, but rather sad. I believe South Park's the musical connection between the two parts is through 'I'll Fly Away' off Lisa Frank Goes to the Mountain. While the OP theme draws a lot of influence from fan-favorite Broadway show 'Legally Blonde The Musical' the second theme is a different show that somehow was stylistically similar. Agreed. When I hear the theme from the first theme, I notice specific Broadway sounds, from bouncy, catchy melody, to funky, upbeat chorus. The OP by way feels a bit more general and in classical/pop style I think. Also, songs from the first half of the show are extremely well written, with great songs for every girl in it. Sure, some might be exaggerated and a bit too similar to the real world, but I think it's awesome nevertheless. It was very well presented with very good production I'd say. And, to be fair to the OP, at least the South Park Bratz theme was a good parody and a bit more fun than OP in a way. I felt that at least a part of the balance OP Song Theme brought to the show wasn't sacrificed for the story telling as well as it was in its first form. In my opinion, the song "It Takes 2" is the best song in the show; the the chorus is so catchy and the breakdown melody and style is so catchy I'm actually that much more in love with the song that I love it now. The song "Together Wherever We Go" is also pretty good, especially in the ending. Not so much with songs like "Lost and Alone" and "How's It Going To Be" though, I'm sorry. Incidentally, I just bought Stanley's DVD/Blu-Ray collection a day ago. It's coming out on Tuesday. He also has a weird YouTube channel that has some new music and a very confusing serie of Friends, which might be very interesting if the serie continues. In my opinion, the song "It Takes 2" is the best song in the show; the the chorus is so catchy and the breakdown melody and style is so catchy I'm actually that much more in love with the song that I love it now. You are trapped in a unique and very special prison. Your crimes are not very serious, but you were put in that prison for good reason, good reason. In here there is a very unusual mix of reality and fantasy. Not only you can't go anywhere, but also you can't lose anything. You can't even take anything with you from the outside world. When you were a little boy, this prison seemed to be just a boring and normal prison. When you got older, you first noticed that the surroundings and the people in here are very strange and peculiar. After a while, you found that those people keep on telling you that you were put in here for no reason. They tell you that you really deserved to be here and that you really deserve what happened to you. They tell you that you are a thief, that you're a murderer and that you're a criminal. They even taught you how to behave. They let you forget that you are not only a criminal, but also a normal human being. They take care of your basic needs. They even feed you. They teach you how to behave like a criminal. And they punish you in case of disobedience. They punish you by burning your hand. They punish you by taking your voice. And they punish you by making you dig your own grave. Every day they turn your coffee ground into a new fresh cake and they keep it in the refrigerator. Every day you eat the new cake and it tastes delicious. They let you break into and steal the refrigerator if you want. But if you break into the refrigerator, they will simply break into your stomach and make you dig your own grave again. You can watch television. They let you watch TV. And then they let you do nothing for hours and hours. Every night they bring you books. They teach you to read and write. Then they let you do nothing again for hours and hours. But if you read too much, they will burn your hand. And they will punish you with one month of boredom. You can call your friends. You can invite people to visit you. You can have a visitor. But you can't let your visitors leave and you can't let them leave you anything. You can't even give them a single cup of coffee if you don't want to. Because they will just burn your hand and they will make you dig your own grave again. You can't go anywhere. You can't leave. You can't try to escape. And you can't call for
