Score a goal (Physical football) is a simple board game of ball and field. Players take turns throwing the ball through the opponent's goal. The first player to score five goals wins. Board There are four sections on the game board, each representing one of four possible goal locations. The first section serves as the field and the second as the goal. The third section is a yellow zone and the fourth a red zone. If the ball goes through both the yellow and red zones, the player attempting to score wins. Legends John Mark Taye Robert Robson Rules of the Game A typical game of score a goal commences after a ball is thrown. The first player is given 3 throws. The second player then makes 3 throws, then the third player makes 3 throws, followed by 4th player, etc. The last player to throw the ball is the winner. The opponent's turn is made when the ball lands somewhere other than in the goal. If the ball lands in the goal, the player who threw the ball wins. History of the Game The game was created at the Michigan Institute of Technology by John Mark Taye (1870-1946) in 1917 under the name score a goal. Three years later in 1920, Robert Robson produced a version for Kaybu, a toy company. Taye's original board is still in existence and is now in the historical collection of the Michigan State University Archives of the College of Agricultural Sciences. Robson's board is preserved in the Special Collections at Muskegon Public Library. Original Rules Under these original rules, four movements are used: A throw-in, at any place in the field, will award its owner one point. If the ball lands in the goal, either by the original thrower or the opponent's throw, it will be removed from the game, and the opponent will get one point. A free throw will cost the original thrower one point, and one point to the opponent. A free kick is allowed when the ball is thrown into the opponent's goal from outside of the edge of the field. This point will go to the thrower (who could have been any of the four players). After the original player has thrown a certain number of times, two points are awarded. Influences Prodi As the game spread throughout the twenties and thirties, it became popular in Germany

The excuse is that the developers of this game are bored by their lives and went to create a game instead of doing something good for our society, like actually doing science. Like say, inventing chemical weapons or something. Anyway, in Sports Game Simulation 2019-2020.com, players step into the role of contestants, ready to battle it out in the most exciting sports competition there is. A sports competition where the goal is to be crowned as "King of Everything", if you will. And now, to become a contestant, all you need to do is to play as much as possible to earn the right to be one. Easy to learn, hard to master! Players take on the role of three aspiring football players. You can control a single player or pair up with your virtual teammate to complete the game, with the object of both of you being crowned as the champion. In Sports Game Simulation 2019-2020.com, all you need to do is to control the hand of one player and pass the ball with your (virtual) teammate, just like you would in real life.
