Keep watching this space and we will be updating this article.Rep. Grayson: The Washington Post Was Wrong, My Opinion Still Matters Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez was roasted after she appeared to suggest that members of Congress who want to debate the Green New Deal need to bow out of their jobs. She has since apologized for this comment, so now we can all move on. But we can't really move on because we learned something very important about the Green New Deal: It's not a deal. It's a plan. If you want to debate the Green New Deal, you can debate the Green New Deal. That's what we've done for years. We've had members of Congress on Fox News, we've had members of Congress on MSNBC. They've debated it. I've had members of Congress debate it on TV. We debated it on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives. People could debate it, and the full House could vote on it. That's what a legislative process is for. For progressives, it's a process, not a deal. When we say it's a plan, we mean it. And they have made it clear that this is a plan. It's not a discussion; it's a confrontation. When you write this plan on a piece of paper and present it to the public, it is not a suggestion; it is an ultimatum. "Get on board or else."

That's
