This is a must-have app. Home of People is one of my favorite iPhone apps and the developers offer such a wide range of useful features that I simply can't let this one go.

Our life is evolving and it's impossible to keep up with its changes. At some point you simply cannot remember all your personal information which is based on your data on social networks. With this app, instead of spending ages remembering such information, you can simply update the files.

The app works with many social media platforms and offers a lot of benefits:

- Chat on Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter or send private emails
- Use Google+ for posting updates on your wall and share status updates with followers
- Post a photo on Facebook or Twitter and remove them from Photostream and status updates

- Upload multiple photos and videos to Facebook and Twitter

by A few days ago I launched my project at GitHub: the Swarm Analytics Platform. I've posted about it before and I want to walk through the basics of the project here. My goal in creating this project is to collect some open source code so I can continue to learn that code base and attempt to play around with it from time to time. The Swarm Analytics Platform is that code base. Swarm Analytics uses a central data repository to collect intelligence from the various elements of the Swarm project. The main elements being: IPFS DNS OT Gateway Tor Discord Scatter.js You can use the Swarm Analytics platform as-is or build your own projects upon the code base. Feel free to experiment to your heart's content. So that's what Swarm Analytics is all about. It's a project that I've been working on and that I've seen other people use as well. In this article I'm going to walk you through a basic example for setting up Swarm Analytics as well as walk you through how I can do some of the config work to get it running for others. Installing Swarm Analytics There are many ways to setup Swarm Analytics. The first thing you need to do is get the Swarm Analytics code base. I've uploaded the code onto the Swarm Analytics GitHub page for everyone to use. The code is currently lacking features to complete the installation yet and there are a few bugs still. The Swarm Analytics code base is open source and can be changed as you see fit. To install Swarm Analytics you will need: Node.js v10+ Git Node Package Manager (NPM) DNS curl Open a terminal window and type the following commands to download the code base: git clone cd swarm-analytics Now that we have the code base installed we can begin to setup Swarm Analytics. Again the code base is open source and we can modify or add to it as needed. Please visit the GitHub page for Swarm Analytics to see the current code base for Swarm Analytics. Before we begin it's important to note that the Swarm Analytics platform uses a central data repository to collect intelligence from the various elements of the Swarm project. This data

Q: First time user complaining that I haven't mentioned myself on any of his questions in a day, but I have answered at least 2 of them I have seen this user around here for several weeks, so I thought I would start a chat with him. I got a sort of misgiving though because he hasn't been putting in any effort to improve his post quality, so I thought he might not want any help. But he started complaining that he hasn't got any comments or answers on his questions. I was happy to help him in any way as I thought he would benefit from getting at least one comment on a question. But he starts complaining that he hasn't gotten any answers. However, the answer he got was mine. So I got paranoid and just said I don't see him complaining about that Anymore, as he has gotten about 10 answering comments and 16 accepts. I think he was getting a bit testy though, so I stopped trying to approach him again. I have answered enough of his questions though, so he should be able to find me. Now, I have a feeling he will start complaining about me not answering his questions for him. I don't mind if he doesn't like my answers but I have just told him to find me. I guess I have written an answer as if I thought he was going to ask for help again, he ended up changing his title and I didn't know whether he was still hoping I would come to his aid or not. Is this I'm going to end up in trouble, since I am supposed to be helpful to the OP regardless of what the OP asks? A: You should be trying to help the users, not make yourself
