So with summer long here, it's time to examine the state of the college basketball season. I thought we were done looking at the 2012-13 season, but Adam Lerner's "Close the Ring" series is back with the 2014-15 season in the books. (You can check out the 2012-13 series by clicking here.) The 2013-14 season was fantastic and broke nearly every NCAA record. Jay Bilas ranked it the greatest season since the 2005-06 Huskies, and I wrote about it here. Overall, college basketball felt like it was going to be better than it had been in a few years. This season, the nation

I do not want to kill them, but I want to be there when they die. I want to be able to help them when they are struggling with the inevitable fallout of their illness; I want to be there when they feel their life slipping away because they have to undergo an intervention. I want to be a part of that experience. In the end, we are all on an equal footing in this respect. We all want to be with the dying, even if we believe that we shouldn't. This reveals something about the allpervasive human desire to connect: to be with others, whether we are dying or not. It reveals, too e79caf774b
