Between windows 7 crack activation installsThe latest news and information about the National Labor Relations Board, published under the auspices of the Department of Labor. Thursday, February 13, 2011 February 11, 2011 News Releases U.S. Department of Labor Releases Wage and Hour Enforcement Priorities and Initiates New Enforcement Project WASHINGTON - The U.S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division today released a list of enforcement priorities for 2011, and announced the launch of a pilot program to identify employees whose claims are likely to be settled administratively. This initiative will improve the time and cost to settle such cases, and more quickly identify potential violations before litigation is necessary. Under the pilot program, the Wage and Hour Division will identify employees whose claims are likely to be settled administratively and notify the agency of potential violations. "Earning a living is the central mission of the Wage and Hour Division, and we are actively working to improve the time and cost to resolve low-wage employees' claims," said James C. Kuhl, Wage and Hour Division Acting Administrator. "This pilot will provide a better understanding of the resources available to resolve cases administratively. Ultimately, we hope this pilot program will improve the time and cost to resolve these cases." The Wage and Hour Division released its 2011 Wage and Hour Enforcement Priorities. The priorities focus on the most common violations committed by employers and on employers' use of "off-the-clock" employees. Wage and Hour investigators also will work to recover unpaid overtime and minimum wages owed to employees who have been cheated out of wages by their employers or their employer's agent. The 2011 Wage and Hour Enforcement Priorities are: The number one issue for the Wage and Hour Division in 2011 will be ensuring that all employees who work overtime are fairly compensated for their overtime work. The Division will work to address issues such as overtime misclassification, overtime underpayments, unpaid overtime and improper deductions. The Division's greatest concentration in this area will be on employers who systematically use off-the-clock employees
