There are an increasing number of solutions in the marketplace to provide protection for laptop computers, tablets, and smart phones ("mobile devices") against physical damage such as the loss or breakage of one or more keys from the mobile device. Such solutions include the use of sleeve type cases, hard plastic cases that cover the entire exterior of the mobile device, respectively, hard plastic cases that cover only the screen portion of the mobile device, respectively, and other associated solutions. Many customers find these solutions unacceptable because they require that the customer leave the case on or within the mobile device. It is well known that the functionality of the mobile device is affected by the placement or placement of the mobile device in a bag or other carrying case. In addition, many of these cases are bulky and can be difficult to fit in a desired location within a bag or other carrying case. Moreover, many of these cases are aesthetically unattractive. Accordingly, there is a need for a mobile device case that can be used to transport a mobile device. There is a need for a mobile device case that does not require that the customer leave the mobile device within the case. There is a need for a mobile device case that is simple to use and is aesthetically pleasing to most individuals. There is a need for a mobile device case that can be attached to a preferred position on the exterior of a bag or other carrying case. There is a need for a mobile device case that is sized and shaped to minimize the bulkiness of the mobile device case in a preferred position on the exterior of a bag or other carrying case. 3D Mockup With Photo Background The 3D mockup is very useful for creating a design mockup when you have a picture or screen capture to use as your background. Also, this mockup tool can be used to advertise a website, for example to display it on the Android Market app. We have already discussed how to create a logo in 3D and how to
