Since the language displayed is generally not very readable at a distance, especially at night, it is common practice to place the information displayed on a sign in a "piggyback" relationship in which an illuminated display is mounted on top of a background sign and is visible through the background sign. However, the light source in the background sign is not usually suited to bright sunlight or bright headlights and, therefore, the illuminated display is not visible to anyone other than the person reading the background sign. Therefore, it desirable to provide a sign display which is visible to motorists at a distance and which is illuminated to provide a uniform glow which is visible and three fore, the illuminated display is not visible to anyone other than the person reading the background sign.
