I am trying to do this with JavaScript so far and have been able to animate the bottom but I am having trouble with the top and right. var i = 0; function up() { document.getElementById("t").style.position = "absolute"; document.getElementById("t").style.top = "300px"; } function down() { document.getElementById("t").style.position = "relative"; document.getElementById("t").style.bottom = "300px"; } function stop() { if (i > 4) { clearInterval(interval); } i++; } Any help is appreciated! Hello World! Stop A: You can create a parent node and then move that object at the same time as you move the 'child' element. With some tweaking, the code below will do what you want: function up() { document.getElementById("t").style.position = "absolute"; document.getElementById("t").style.top = "300px"; } function down() { document.getElementById("t").style.position = "relative"; document.getElementById("t").style.bottom = "300px"; } function stop() { if (i > 4) { clearInterval(interval); } i++; }
