download mdaemon 12.5.6 full keygenQ: Importing namespaces with new operator and setting value I am currently working on a project for work. The project requires that all classes be saved to a project directory. I am trying to load my classes by: `import {Class1, Class2} from './path/to/projectDir'`; And then set them to an instance: `instance = new Class1(this.dependency1, this.dependency2)`; The problem occurs when trying to set the value in Class1. `class Class1 { constructor(dependency1, dependency2) { this.dependency1 = dependency1; this.dependency2 = dependency2; } }` But I get an error: Cannot set property 'dependency1' of undefined Is there a way to set these values before saving all my classes? Thanks! A: If the error happens when setting, you have to instantiate a Class1 before setting it. `class Class1 { constructor(dependency1, dependency2) { this.dependency1 = dependency1; this.dependency2 = dependency2; } } function instantiateClass1() { return new Class1(this.dependency1, this.dependency2); }` Then you can call it any time in your app like that: `import {Class1} from './path/to/projectDir'; const clazz1 = instantiateClass1(); clazz1.dependency1 = 1234; // it's not undefined` Sex-determination of triakontadeltatriaconta-tricontinental. Possible origins of the sexual system in triakontadeltatriaconta-tricontinental are discussed. The results of the morphological and cytological studies point to the amoeboid cell as the sex differentiation center and the alga as a possible precursor of the sexual cells. The amoeboid cell is similar to the precursor cells of some protozoan flage
