You need to activate it, and your activation is only good as long as you have paid for it. If you don't have an activation key to give to a legitimate program, than you can't activate it. My guess is that you have a legitimate program on this machine that you did not pay for. At one time you did activate this legitimate software. Tuesday, January 17, 2010 Taco Love I was making dinner the other night and decided to serve some of the chicken fajitas I had made the night before. I just happened to have an old rotisserie chicken in the fridge, which always makes for a fantastic dinner. I made pico de gallo, guacamole, sour cream, guacamole, and a spinach salad. That was for dinner. I also had some ripe avocados in the fridge so I went ahead and made tacos. They were delicious! I didn't have tortillas, so I simply sprinkled corn tortilla chips in the bottom of my baking dish. Then, I spread out the chicken and the spinach. On top of the spinach was the fajitas. And then, I topped all of this off with a few sprinkles of cheese. So, I'm having another dinner tomorrow night and it will be, of course, a taco night, complete with sour cream, guacamole, pico de gallo, and of course, crispy tortillas. 2 comments: I think the spicing was perfect for the fajitas. And those tacos looked delicious. We ended up with pico de gallo and guacamole left over from a party we hosted a couple weeks ago. It was a crowd pleaser, and my kids have been asking for them again. I don't even like the sound of
