A 64-year-old man was admitted to our hospital for the treatment of postoperative dysphagia. Endoscopy revealed a pea-sized whitish granular lesion in the pyriform sinus. Computed tomography revealed no tumor or mass in the larynx and pharynx, whereas the lesion abutted the esophagus. We suspected the possibility of malignancy or perforation. Under the clinical diagnosis of malignant tumor in the pyriform sinus, a partial laryngectomy was performed. Microscopic examination of the excised specimen showed non-caseous epitheloid granuloma. Acid-fast staining was negative, and Mycobacterium tuberculosis culture and polymerase chain reaction of the excised specimen were both negative. Histological examination and culture of the biopsy sample of the pyriform sinus revealed a non-caseous epitheloid granuloma with Mycobacterium mucogenicum. To our knowledge, this is the first case report of non-tuberculous mycobacteriosis associated with dysphagia. and a long history of efforts to self-identify as a sector of the broader labor movement. The WSF has been able to continue its work independently because of its decades of successes in organizing diverse peoples of different locations and experiences. Some organizers have never engaged in a really massive mobilizations, and some have done it many times. This is because of the rigorous, strategic, and historical-materialist preparation that we have done over the last three decades. In other words, we spend a lot of time reading and thinking about the past of struggles, and we engage in the preparation of specific goals and strategies to run a c6a93da74d
