Easyusetools Extended 1.4

Then one of the most common problem is not the cart, it is an issue with your software.Cart cores obtain and work via satellite reception. Satellite reception is usually poor in certain areas of town. Is it hard to get to the interstate? Then satellite may likely not work. If you are using older software the cart might not ship a signal at all. Whatever the case maybe, the software is the source of your difficulty. That is exactly where you start. The first thing to do would be to take the cart offline from the computer. (I suggest putting it into hibernate and yes, you use a sleeping mouse to turn it off.)Pull the plug from the cart, don't pull it inside of the computer.Turn it on and try running the software.The first thing is to identify if the hardware is working. It is the heart of the cart. The cart will only function when it is able to get a signal. If the signal will not be sent or if it will not be received, no cart. It has got to operate inside of its specifications, it has to send and receive signals to exchange data. If the cart is not receiving or sending the necessary signals, the cart will not function properly and it will likely be tough to fix.After identifying the hardware problem, move on to the software. If the software isn't a severe problem you may possibly fix it yourself.The next step is to read the easyusetools manual. The manual provides step by step instructions that will help you work out and fix the software.Print out the manual and read it. If you're not comfortable fixing the software issue, ask a friend or family member. The last choice is to contact easyusetools support.Once you're familiarized with the manual, you need to create a backup of the files in the software. You can create a backup using the exact instructions that followed.Make sure you get all the information to restore. Make sure you do a one time backup only. The backup should contain the information that you are using to set up your map so that if something goes wrong, you should be capable to restore the software to the previous settings.The next step is to read the manual and print out the instructions to completely remove the cart from the computer. If there is no need for the cart to be connected to the computer, then the only step is to turn off the power source. This would be the battery.Now that you've removed the cart and battery, reassemble them back in the laptop. If you want to keep on your car or truck, reassemble it after a good rest. Take it for a drive and see if you get a signal. The cart was working. If you don't get the signal, remove the cart and start over.Attempting to enter a new map for it to function will only cause the cart to become not work. These are usually caused by using the wrong maps on the cart. If you have the right maps for the cart, it will get a strong signal and work properly. If it does not get the required signal, try uninstalling and reinstalling the cart.This means your cart is bad. Possibly a bad cart card, an incompatibility with the navigation software, or simply not able to get a signal. Whatever the case might be, it's time to take your cart to the store and have a professional check it out.The last step is to leave the cart and the cart box at the store. If possible, bring both the cart box and the cart. If you are near a specialist that carries a cart, you may also ask them to check it. They will be able to see the cart hardware and it will tell them a lot easier than you or I may.
