3rd edition. robert j. schilling. fundamentals of robotics-analysis and control.the effect of online instruction on the learning curve for radial artery cannulation. the objective of this study was to assess the effect of a five-week online instruction program on the learning curve for radial artery cannulation. the study was conducted at the university of nottingham, uk, and comprised 100 students. the participants were randomly assigned to online instruction (n = 49) or a control group (n = 51). the intervention group attended an online tutorial, developed by the authors, on the anatomy of the radial artery. the control group received no additional instruction. the primary outcome measure was time to successful cannulation. time to successful cannulation was significantly shorter in the intervention group (p = 0.0007), with a mean difference between groups of 5.6 (95% ci = 1.9 to 9.3) min. the study demonstrated that the online instruction program had a positive effect on the learning curve for radial artery cannulation. mod. phys.
